

It's hard to believe that a person could actually understand what they're reading here.

This demonstrates the phenomenal power of the human capacity for language.

According to research from Cambridge University, it doesn't matter in what order the letters making up a word are placed. The only important thing is that the first and last letter are correctly placed. Beyond that the rest can be totally messed up and you can still read it without a problem. This is because the human mind does not read every letter by itself, but the word as a whole. In addition, we derive cues from the context of the sentence to further help us to identify the words.

And people always tell you spelling is important.

This is my pen.

This pen is mine.

I don't care.

I am indifferent.

Never threaten someone with a chain saw.

It may result in an injury.

Over the years I have learned that visiting relatives can be a real hassle.

Often I have found the preparations to be way too much work.

HE LEARNED THREE NEW WORDS TODAY... 'DISMEMBER', 'EVISCERATE', AND 'SLAUGHTERHOUSE.' OH, WAIT... IS SLAUGHTERHOUSE ONE WORD OR TWO?

